

Trivale forest “seasoned ...with garbage“

Trivale Park arranged on about 27 hectares, is situated in an old oak forest. Since 1900, the park which has the same name as the forest itself, has attracted tourists by grand oaks. The importance of the park is accentuated by the existence of the Trivale Hermitage, a construction started by Metropolitan Varlaam in 18th century.

The beauty and wilderness of Trivale forest is still pleasing the eye of each tourist and nature lover. It has always met the expectation of the one who wants to take oxygen from this “green lung”, although the barbecue lovers put their imprint in a negative manner.

The beginning of summer is celebrated with rich meals (which is not bad) but they don't clean the table in the aid. Thus, nature is damaged because of our lack of responsibility. Unwilling to be educated, order and tidiness, they leave heaps of garbage behind them.

People who come here to relax have to endure the desolate image and some of them even start to collect garbage . Why are you still waiting for the cleaning teams? This is a typical problem and it is closely related to education, dedication and seriousness. Barbecue lover are only afraid of the rain. So, God, let it rain! We ask ourselves a rhetorical question. How many of those who threw garbage were punished?

Trivale forest is definitely not the right place for them, but it is for those who find themselves in its rhythms and everlasting harmony!
